A sprawling complex, extended hours, new faces, and an improved and diverse curriculum are some of the changes that mark the growth of Whitmer. Just as the earth's territories have been extended to include the moon, so have Whitmer's boundaries grown. Many features of Whitmer have widened to offer students a more complete and extensive education.

New students coming to Whitmer each year largely increase the size of the student body. Enrollment has grown from 166 students in 1928 to 4429 students for the 1969 — 1970 school year. This increase creates a need for expansion in classroom space curriculum, faculty, activities, and student responsibility.

Jefferson, which was once old Whitmer and contained grades nine through twelve, originally was the only building in existence in the complex. Washington was then built in 1952 to alleviate overcrowding in the elementary schools. Whitmer soon followed in 1958 to cope with the growing number of students. Today, eighth grade students attend Jefferson while ninth graders occupy Washington, and Whitmer contains grades ten through twelve. Since September, 1968, the three schools have been unified as a complex under one principal and one set of department heads. The stadium, where new seats were built recently to accommodate greater attendance at football games, is also a part of the complex. A new addition this year is the relocatable classrooms constructed to ease the problem of needed space.

Extending the school day has aided in dealing with the increasing number of students. According to their individual schedules, students may arrive as early as 7:30 or leave as late as 4:10, making it possible for the entire student body to be together at school for only a few hours out of the day. An attempt has been made to maintain smaller classes thus developing a closer relationship between students and faculty.

Activities throughout the school have grown and increased to include as many students as possible. Many new organizations have been formed. VICA, BOE, Volunteens and French Honorary are groups created out of students' interests in varied fields and their desire to be active in school projects. New clubs and previously formed clubs welcome many new members each year. Nearly every day is scheduled with a project or event sponsored by a Whitmer organization. Old clubs have taken on new responsibilities. Student Council has extended Homecoming into a week-long affair, and has planned and worked to beautify the courtyards. Members of Student Council have improved communication and relations by involving more people, both students and faculty, in various projects. Numerous AFS undertakings have permitted the sponsoring of two exchange students this year. Francisco Rodriguez, from Tome, Chile, is the foreign student attending Whitmer this year while Jim Weinberg, a Whitmerite, recently returned from a year of study in Curitiba, Brazil.

Because the Whitmer complex is now the largest high school in the state of Ohio, it was necessary to leave the Great Lakes League and join the independent league. Whitmer is now matched against schools which are closer in number in enrollment. Many sports at Whitmer have several teams, Varsity, Reserve, ninth grade and eighth grade because of the many interested and qualified people. Having numerous teams allows more students to participate and be active.

With the non-graded program, students are less restricted in their choice of curriculum and are able to work according to their ability. Many new subjects such as Statistics, Humanities, Aviation, Growth of the English Language, and The Bible as Literature have been added to the already gigantic list of courses to give students an informative, well-rounded background. Courses and phases are selected by the student, with the guidance of teachers and counselors, to suit his capacity. The Independent Study program has grown with thirty two full-time independent study students. After their release from classes, these students are not obligated to attend classes every day, but are allowed to work on their own at their own speed with the help and guidance of teachers and group seminars with independent study team members. Other students who wish to work on their own may do so through Quest, where experimental research is done on a selected field of interest. Another new concept, student scheduled time, places responsibility on the student to utilize his time wisely. During this allotted time, a student is free to go to the commons area, where he can visit with friends or do homework. The Humanities and Math-Science resource centers are used for research and independent study. Offices of the counselors and deans are available for students to go to discuss educational or vocational plans or any problems that they may have. Under these programs, students are accountable for themselves and must rely on themselves for discipline.

Whitmer has expanded considerably in all areas through the years and now the complex maintains the fast pace set by today's enlarging world. The complex was established to cope with and unify this constantly growing school and student body. However, individuality and quality are not lost in this vast, expanding complex.

CURRICULUM

*Expansion of schools creates the need for

Below: Mr. Martin Brumbaugh — Administrative Assistant for Business, Mr. Harvey Davis — Administrative Assistant for Personnel.

Superintendent of Schools

Each year as the school system expands, the need for a specialized administration grows. Individualized study is the main goal aimed at by every board member. Each man on the board uses the following theory in performing his duties, "Individualized Instruction — each child developing at a pace and level commensurate with his particular combination of aptitudes, learning styles, and interests."

With the beginning of the 1970 school year, superintendent of schools, Mr. Nightingale, celebrated the start of his twenty-fifth year of service to the Washington Local School System. He was principal at Shoreland for seven years, and for three years at Washington Junior High. Three years experience as assistant superintendent enabled him for the position of superintendent of schools for the past twelve years.

The assistant superintendent in the Washington Local School System is Mr. DeLong. Being the director of secondary education, the Whitmer complex is his main responsibility. Mr. Huffman, the director of elementary education is in charge of the thirteen elementary schools in the system.

Mr. Brumbaugh's duties as the administrative assistant for business include business management for the system, maintenance, and transportation. Mr. Davis has the job of administrative assistant for personnel. This position involves interviewing and recommending to the board names of eligible personnel. Keeping an account of the school district's funds and signing all checks is the job of Mr. Bishop, clerk-treasurer.

Three portable classrooms were added to the Whitmer building this year to help curb the problem of overcrowded classrooms. All the rooms were air-conditioned and carpeted.

This year elementary schools began a non-graded system which meant students were graded on a pass or fail system. Also added to the curriculum were more teachers for special education.

Mr. Turner, a newly elected board member, filled an expired term when he took office January, 1970.

BOARD OF EDUCATION: Mr. Thyer — V. Pres., Mr. Metzger, Mr. Bishop — Clerk/Treas., Dr. Mignerey, Mr. Knisely — Pres., Dr. DeGood.

Issuing absence slips to students generally keeps Mr. Brechbill busy in the morning.

*Mr. Robert Bender
Associate Principal*

*Mr. Larry Brechbill
Assistant Principal*

*Mr. Eugene Knauss
Associate Principal*

*Mr. Frederick Holden
Assistant Principal*

Mr. Holden daily takes time to converse with eighth graders about school experiences.

*Mr. Alan Aufderheide
Director of Research and Development*

Mr. Boyd Martin
Principal

Mr. Alvarez uses the public address system to make an emergency announcement.

Principals encourage student leadership by holding open forums.

Mr. Donald Bahna
Associate Principal

Mr. Al Alvarez
Associate Principal

The new principal of the Whitmer complex, Mr. Martin came to Whitmer after serving as principal ten years, five at Bowling Green High School and five at Port Clinton. In order that he could assist the two associate principals at Washington and Jefferson, Mr. Martin visited the two buildings on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, respectively. He met with Mr. Knauss and Mr. Bender, visited classes, and consulted with department heads. Mr. Martin also met with students the first of every month in order that he might hear their grievances and ideas.

Mr. Bahna, Whitmer's new associate principal in charge of curriculum, was responsible for student and teacher schedules at all three buildings.

Mr. Alvarez was associate principal in charge of student activities and discipline. Two changes in his office included the transfer of attendance records to the deans' offices and the requirement of a class admittance slip for late students.

Mr. Bender and Mr. Knauss served as associate principals at the Washington and Jefferson buildings, respectively. They were responsible for scheduling next year's classes and evaluating teachers new to the system.

Mr. Brechbill and Mr. Holden were the two assistant principals. It was their job to assist the principals, serve as athletic directors, keep attendance records, and set the guidelines for discipline.

Mr. Aufderheide, Director of Research and Development, guided all the Title III personnel. He was in charge of the grant finances, hosted visitors, made speeches about the Title III program, reported current developments to the U.S. State Department of Education, and conducted workshops for teachers.

Mrs. Scofield answers the phone as one of many chores during her busy day in the Curriculum Office.

Checking attendance of students in the Whitmer building is one job that occupies the time of Mrs. Shaefer and Mrs. Feaver.

A great deal of concentration is exerted by Mrs. Miller as she proof-reads a business letter for Mr. Martin.

Whitmer secretaries

Mrs. Williamson files college information in the counselors' office.

Mrs. Heaton cheerfully deposits notices in the mailboxes to inform teachers of Jefferson activities.

Secretary to Mr. Martin, Mrs. Miller was seen in her office compiling diploma lists, typing complex progress reports, and opening and sorting the mail. The responsibilities of Mrs. Pontius, bookkeeper, included writing checks, balancing activity accounts, and making monthly reports.

Mrs. Schaefer and Mrs. Feaver arranged announcements, recorded grades and honor roll, and maintained a pleasant working atmosphere in Mr. Alvarez's office.

This year Mrs. Scofield busily made schedule changes, registered boys for the Selective Service, and worked with students as Mr. Bahna's secretary in the Curriculum office.

In the guidance office, Mrs. Williamson took care of correspondence for the counselors, filed career information, and handled the college catalogs.

The title III office buzzed with the activity of Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Blazey. They typed daily on packets, and handled program applications for Quest phasing and independent study.

At Washington, Mrs. Crabb managed the school store, took care of all correspondence, and assisted in class scheduling.

Mrs. Heaton was found typing and reading daily announcements, compiling absence lists, and recording schedule changes at Jefferson.

Counting money, balancing books, and filling out requisitions occupy Mrs. Pontius.

Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Blazey mimeograph packets daily in the Title III office.

Mrs. Crabb pauses in the doorway as she contemplates the busy day ahead of her.

School specialists at Whitmer aid students in everyday queries.

Mrs. Boros shows freshman Mike Fecchino the latest pamphlet, pointing out future career possibilities.

The counselors in the Whitmer complex have spent another active year assisting students in their search to understand themselves. Individual and group counseling were the two main techniques used to attain this goal. In order that the students could better evaluate their own abilities, the counselors administered and interpreted achievement tests. To help students plan for the future, information about college and job opportunities was made available in the form of pamphlets and speakers.

This was the first year that a counselor, Mr. Davis, served as vocational guidance coordinator for Whitmer. It was his duty to inform community employers, service agencies, and local vocational educators about the guidance program available at Whitmer. He then consulted with students and their parents concerning job opportunities and placement in the vocational program.

Mr. Hersland and Mrs. Schlegel, Whitmer's deans, solved the disciplinary problems that arose during the year. For the first time there were three assistant deans, Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Kerlin, and Mr. Erme, who helped with keeping attendance records, setting standards for good conduct, and issuing late slips to students.

Administering first aid and typing gym cards for ill or injured students were two of the many things that made up the daily schedule for Whitmer nurses. A major change at Whitmer was the hiring of an additional full time nurse so there could be a nurse for the boys' and girls' health rooms.

Cooks daily prepare nourishing breakfast for morning students.

The Whitmer cafeteria staff began another good year by serving breakfast every morning for students arriving early at school. Hot chocolate, coffee, juices, toast, dry cereal, milk and several kinds of rolls were among the breakfast foods offered to the hungry students and teachers. They kept a busy pace by serving a wide selection of tasteful foods during all lunch hours. A new addition to the cafeteria this year was the sandwich bar. The cooks sold a variety of hot and cold sandwiches, milk, and potato chips. The smiling and pleasant faces of the cooks, along with the decorations during the holidays added a cheerful atmosphere to the cafeteria. Several students worked in the cafeteria during their student scheduled time. This was on a volunteer basis. In return they received their lunch at no cost. The cooks kept the cafeteria clear of dirty trays and trash left by the students so the next lunch hour would have a clean place to eat.

Along with the overall maintenance of the buildings, the custodians kept wastepaper baskets emptied, windows clean, and an ample supply of soap and towels in the lavatories.

Custodians were seen helping students open jammed lockers, cleaning biology rooms, and sweeping all the rooms after school was out. After Thanksgiving, Christmas, and spring vacations, the students noticed the waxed floors.

*Creativity is evident
ingenuity in projects.*

Art consists of Art I, sculpture, painting, ceramics, arts and crafts, and commercial art and design. Creativity is stressed by the instructors so that students will gain more insight into the world of art. Art I introduced the student to other areas of art. Students studied the color wheel, figure drawing, three dimensional work, and learning of perspective.

Metals, woods, plastics and clay were used in molding three dimensional forms in sculpture.

Painting involved the use of tempera oils, water color, and acrylic. In ceramics class the students created wares of clay. Students made objects from available material in the arts and crafts class. The commercial art and design class designed fashion posters.

Students taking home economics worked one semester in foods and nutrition. Emphasis was placed on the basic problems in the preparation of recipes and planning meals to meet nutrition requirements.

In sewing, students studied materials and fabrics, how to assemble and use a pattern, and how to perfect their work on a sewing machine. A unit in color and design as it applies to wardrobe planning was also included.

Marcia Browning, Wendy Akers, and Regina Furson peel and slice vegetables that will be used in the preparation of a meal.

Cosmetology is a two year course designed to prepare the student to take the State Board Examination.

The course when completed consisted of 1500 hours which were spent in theory, practice, demonstration, and clinic. Hours in bacteriology, scalp treatments, hair cutting, cold waving, care of wigs, facials, selling, cosmetic chemistry, electricity and anatomy of the hair, skin, and nails made up the required hours to take the State Board Examination. If this exam was passed successfully, it enabled the students to assume a license and become professional cosmetologists.

Electronics presented the necessary information for introductory training in electronic circuits. Starting with electrons and the atom, the topics progressed to D-C circuits, magnetism, A-C circuits, vacuum tubes, and transistors. These fundamentals formed the basis for the study of advanced applications, including communications, electronics such as the radio, industrial electronics and computers.

The shop course encouraged students to apply these fundamentals in laboratory projects involving the building of simple circuits, radios, the use of test equipment and trouble shooting electronic circuits. In addition, the students acquired an understanding of the training, educational requirements and opportunities in various branches of the electronic industry.

Students participating in the metals course learned the use of metals as used in the areas of art metal, sheet metal, arc and gas welding, and fusing. Jobs and projects selected were on the basis of the student's interest and ability in any or all of the different areas.

Mechanical drawing covered drafting instruments and equipment, drafting techniques, geometric constructions, and lettering shape description. Students also became familiar with threads, fasteners, cams, gears, developments, and detailed and assembled shop drawings.

Architectural drawing is a course designed for those senior boys who have completed the mechanical drawing courses. This course covered building materials, types of construction, and standard house framing details.

Boys in woodworking learned procedures in furniture construction, elementary lathe work, and studied the basic finishing processes and their application to cabinet woods.

Power tools and their maintenance, use of simple jigs with power tools, and basic pattern making, upholstery and carpentry were studied in woodworking II.

Boys who have the ability and desire to seek employment in construction work, carpentry, cabinetmaking or allied occupations can take advanced training course which is woodworking III.

Pre-vocational is a required course for those tenth grade students who plan to go into auto mechanics, drafting, electronics, or machine shop vocational areas in their junior year. Nine weeks were spent in a general survey and familiarization of each of the four vocational areas.

Drafting introduced the students to standard engineering and manufacturing practices and processes that are used in industry today.

First year drafting enabled the student to learn the basic skills and the use of tools and instruments. Students were taught the theories of orthography, perspective projection in engineering drawings, and basic arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry skills. The lab course covered blueprint reading for machine trades, threads, fasteners, cams and gears, ship processes, and multiview projections.

Second year drafting contained the advanced mathematics required to do basic engineering calculations in gearing, work and power, and strength of materials.

In this course, the students analyzed and studied the various component parts of the automobile and were concerned with operation and performance. This is a two year course. The first year was spent learning the basic systems of the automobile.

The second year was advanced work and was studied in detail. Among topics studied were lubrication systems, cooling systems, and hydraulic principles of brake systems, battery and electric systems, tires, spring and frame structure, principles of magnetism and electricity, drive systems and the clutch, and valve systems.

Students listen attentively as Bob Kruger interprets an original paper in composition class.

This year the Jefferson English department increased the number of packets for student use and also introduced new literature concepts. Many new and creative approaches to composition and grammar were also used. Great stress was placed on the individual student in terms of his interests, attitudes, and imagination. Audio-visual teaching aids and a series of films ranging from language development to punctuation were employed by the English department. The phase 1 classes at the Jefferson building took a field trip to WSPD-TV and WTOL-TV as a culminating activity of their classroom study of a unit, "The Television You Watch."

Learning the basic writing skills was the main goal of the composition class. A few of the topics covered in this class were note taking, literary criticism, synopsis, precise writing, and a study of research papers and short stories.

American literature covered the literary scene from the colonial period to the present day by thoroughly studying American authors and their literary works. Concepts such as the conflict of the American dream and Puritanism were presented to the students as they read such books as The Scarlet Letter and The Devil and Daniel Webster. Phase 4 classes spent several weeks analyzing and acting out Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town," which dealt with daily living.

Growth of the English Language was one of the new-est classes offered by the English department this year. The students researched and studied the changes that the English language has evolved through from its primitive beginning until present day.

A new one semester elective class, The Bible as Literature, presented interested students with opportunities to study the King James Bible as a great literary piece. Concentration was placed on the familiar stories of the Old Testament. The purpose of this new class was to help students realize how the Bible has been used as an inspiration and a source for many people's writings.

With the help of packets, contracts, and linguistics, the English department at the Washington building made several new advances this year. The Humanities Resource Center was expanded to fit new and improved facilities. Trips to the Whitmer vocational wing gave Washington teachers new ideas for improvement in their own buildings. An expanded program of movies for all phases included an increased number of trips to the Cinema to see films. Many English classes began research on mythology and constructed projects pertaining to that theme. Various phase 4 classes prepared audio-visual aids for phase 1 and 2 classes.

A strong literature background covering the Anglo-Saxon period through contemporary literary forms was provided in the British Literature course. Shakespearean drama, vocabulary, grammar, and the British novel were several of the topics studied throughout the year.

Short stories, drama, poetry, and novels of many countries were read and interpreted in all classes of World Literature. Two of the conceptual units covered were change and social injustice. Many students signed contracts where they worked independently three days a week.

The drama class was divided into two semester workshops, production and acting. Production, under the direction of Mr. Slovak, made scenery for the junior and senior class plays and the musical. Mrs. Attie directed the acting workshop in which students prepared, produced, and directed their own plays.

Speech classes helped students become aware of their own ideas and feelings, and taught them to present these ideas to others without inhibition. Oral interpretation, pantomime, improvisation, acting, and debating were a few of the fields the speech students studied in depth. One highlight was a demonstration on the proper way to throw a cream pie.

Journalism I class prepared students for future work on the "Panther's Pause." The students were taught newspaper organization, journalistic style, and the business aspects of newspaper publishing. In the advanced journalism class, seniors applied their training and background to produce the school newspaper. The students in yearbook were taught to prepare the ORACLE for publication, to sell advertising to defray costs, and to promote sales to the students.

Humanities students studied concepts that helped them understand the relatedness of all knowledge. Materials were coordinated from literature, art, music, architecture, and philosophy.

Phase 2 English classes were taught basic reading skills through fiction and non-fiction materials taken from current magazines. Also stressed were simple sentence structure, vocabulary, and spelling.

Students who needed a better foundation of the language skills were placed in a phase 1 English class. Although no formal grammar was presented, vocabulary and reading improvement were emphasized.

The purpose of the Reading Centers was to help students increase their reading speed and comprehension. As the students began the nine week program, they were tested and then placed in a reading program designed for each one's individual needs. Each student worked at his own level of achievement and rate of learning, and was under no pressure in this process of learning since neither grades nor credits were given. An open lab basis was available for those students who wished additional time in the course.

The latest techniques for teaching reading and the newest instruments were utilized in the three reading centers. One of these instruments, the controlled reader, was used to improve the comprehension of the student. It was necessary for students to concentrate to read accurately, to organize thoughts, and to remember correctly.

Another instrument, the tachistoscope, helped students sharpen their power of visual perception and retention. These skills could also be used by the students in mathematics and spelling, not only in reading.

The shadowscope used light moving down a page of print as a method to break established eye-movement patterns and replace them with more efficient ones. With this instrument, the student was able to choose his own prepared materials.

Tape recorders were employed to present good listening habits with greater attention, discrimination, organization, and retention. Each taped lesson introduced a specific skill or concept.

At the end of the first semester, Mr. Whiteman and Tim Deuble discuss Tim's self-evaluation of his work.

The Title III program was directed by Mr. JALAN Aufderheide along with assistance from other team members, Mr. Corfman, math department; Mr. O'Reilly, audio-visual center; Mr. Ice, science department; Mr. Mattimore, social studies department; and Mrs. Towe, English department. Together these people tried to establish a better form of learning and teaching through independent study, learning activity packets, audio-visual aids, and resource centers.

During the summer teachers met to work on learning packets and study units for English, math, science, and social studies. Each department decided on the best materials to use and in which ways to present them to the students. The math and science departments also worked on scope and sequence.

This year the independent study program was headed by Mr. Mattimore. There were thirty-two students who participated in the program. Twenty-two students were members of the senior class, five more were selected from the junior class, and another five from the sophomore class. Each student was required to stay in school for at least the minimum six hours. Students were not required to attend classes or do homework, but were suggested to keep in contact with their teachers. A room for IS students was available this year where students could hold group discussions with other IS students, or receive advice from a member of the independent study team. The team is composed of four other members: Mrs. Kunz, Mrs. Karazim, Mr. Cain, and Mr. Whiteman.

In the math-science resource center, Danny Schlosser and Alan Scheinbach work on senior math packets.

New equipment helps AV department issue students' I. D. cards.

One of the most interesting areas of the Whitmer complex was the audio-visual center. Mr. O'Reilly was the head of the center and had assistance from Mrs. Spaulding and Mrs. Bartlett.

Copy of tapes for the resource centers and the foreign language department were made for those students who wished to use them for extra study. Posters for all school events were made in the audio-visual center. A few classes used the televisions for a new teaching method. Student teachers could tape their lectures so their instructors could grade them without being present in the classroom. Another new requirement of all students was the identification card. A special machine was used in making the cards, and a small fee was charged for the ID when underclass pictures were taken in the fall. Pictures from books were made into slides for teachers and duplication of filmstrips were done for the resource centers. Lamination and mounting of materials for each department proved to be very valuable throughout the year. Teachers were encouraged to learn how to operate some of the machines in the AV center, and students helped during their scheduled time.

Resource centers were under the direction of Mrs. Towe, English department chairman. Each building in the complex had a humanities center and a math-science center. Six paraprofessionals, along with student assistants, worked during the day to help students and to keep materials up to date. All the centers were furnished with carrels that could be used for audio-visual purposes or research and study. Students were allowed to play soft music, and colorful lounge furniture was there for reading purposes and as a place for relaxation.

The special education program available at two Whitmer buildings made it possible for various students to acquire good work habits and job training skills as they worked at their own potential. Along with the subjects of math, English, science, and social studies, the students in this program were also taught domestic skills such as sewing, cooking and knitting and they also learned household mechanics. One of the highlights during the year occurred at Christmas when the girls sold pumpkin bread as a fund-raising project. During the year, the boys were taught various skills in order to serve as education assistants at the elementary schools in the district.

Distributive Education developed future leaders for marketing and distribution. It is a vocational program devoted especially to wholesale and service selling.

During the senior year, students attended school half the day. They studied the regular high school subjects and, in addition, subjects related to experience under actual working conditions with local business firms. This on the job training provided practical application of what the trainee had studied in class.

Driver's education at Whitmer is conducted entirely in the night school program to avoid conflict in scheduling. The classroom portion consisted of 45 hours of learning traffic regulations, good driver attitudes, and the "hows and whys" of the car itself. The behind the wheel portion of training consisted of eight hours of actual driving and sixteen hours of observation, totaling twenty-four hours in the car.

Future chemists and biologists learn from experiments in class.

In chemistry students began their study by learning valances and the chemical symbols of elements. Students were taught how to use a slide rule to make logs quicker and easier. Each student was issued a lab table and instruments so he could perform his lab experiments with his partner. Advanced chemistry was offered to those students who planned to further their study in scientific fields in college.

Biology, a course which involves the physical and chemical properties of life, began this year with the history of biology. Students were taught how to use the periodic table, and much time was given to genetics, the study of heredity. During the second semester, the systems and organs of the body were discussed and students learned from experience by dissecting various animals.

Eighth graders were introduced to the basic aspects of all science courses. Teachers arranged curriculum to further the students' previous science knowledge.

Physics, a course which deals with the basic relationships of matter and energy, was taught through the use of learning packets. Packets included such concepts as matter conversions, mechanics of motion, and the basic forms of heat, sound, light, and electrical energy. It was suggested that students have credits in algebra I and chemistry.

Students in physiology found the resource centers useful in obtaining information for their packets. Using this knowledge, students then were able to take practical tests. After returning from vacation, students began the tedious study and dissection of the cat. The cat enabled students to compare and better understand the body systems and how they function.

In general science, students learned the fundamentals of such courses as chemistry, physics, botany, and earth science. The more advanced student could choose a course which emphasized the methods of inquiry and laboratory work.

Several significant changes were made in the mathematics department in order that each year of math would follow in a smooth pattern. One of these changes included an increased number of packets in algebra II and geometry classes. Also, some materials that before took two semesters to cover were reduced in order that they could be studied in one semester.

The first year of math that was introduced to students was general math. This course taught eighth and ninth graders such mathematical background materials as addition, subtraction, and the basic laws of operation.

Intermediate math expanded the concepts of general math and also introduced new areas such as bases, proportions, ratios, graphing of sets, and real numbers.

The information studied in intermediate math was employed in algebra I where the basics of algebra were presented. The real number system and the laws governing it were studied in depth.

A continuation of first year algebra was algebra II in which concepts were extended to include the complex number system, determinates, logarithms, and the graphing of first and second degree equations.

Geometry, which generally followed algebra II dealt with proving postulates and theorems by use of inductive and deductive reasoning.

Mrs. Ottenburg involves her pre-algebra class in an introductory discussion of the real number system.

Bases and ratios are new areas presented in intermediate math.

Each year the business department offers a two year block program to juniors and seniors. This enables the student to be able to apply for any office job upon graduation. The students spend three hours a day in the classroom learning the skills, knowledge, and work habits of a business profession.

The stenographer block provided training in shorthand, bookkeeping, and office practice. Duplicating, adding machines, office environment, business English, spelling, mathematics, and attitude are related areas introduced in the junior block. Emphasis is placed on advanced shorthand and transcription in the senior block with correct English stressed in all office work. Also included in the senior program are areas of typing, business English, telephone techniques, filing, business machines, and consumer economics.

Juniors in the clerk-typist block studied the basics of bookkeeping, filing, and business English, while speed and accuracy were also stressed in typing. Seniors continued their clerical office practice by learning to operate various business machines such as the duplicator, mimeograph, adding and calculating machines, and the executive typewriter.

Students in the junior account-clerk/bookkeeping block studied the fundamentals of bookkeeping, office practice, and business English. Near the end of the first semester, students chose a company name, product, and set up an actual office environment. During the senior year, students were concerned with the two major areas, advanced bookkeeping and business machines. Students developed an understanding of business transactions relevant to the proprietorship, the partnership, and the corporation.

Blocks offer training for job opportunities in rewarding areas.

As Mrs. Ball reads off figures from the IOE selling project, Dianna Orange double checks their overall sales on the adding machine.

Miss Wall dictates to her stenographers' class as her students listen closely in order to be able to correctly transcribe the lesson into shorthand.

While competence in several commonly used office machines was stressed in business machines, bookkeeping I taught the basic books of records for the single proprietorship. Notehand, a course mainly for seniors, teaches the student a brief but accurate way to take notes. Students in office practice must have completed typing I, in order to have skill in letter and manuscript writing. While speed in taking dictation in shorthand is essential, correct English usage, spelling, and punctuation is also stressed. After learning the keyboard in typing, students are able to concentrate on increasing their speed and accuracy.

Business machines taught students how to operate machines such as the calculator, adding machines, mimeograph, duplicator, mimeoscope, bookkeeping machines, and the executive typewriter.

Business math was a course which covered problems dealing with savings and investments. To increase one's knowledge of understanding, optional materials were included.

Information on the purchase and use of insurance, and information on the possession of homes are a few of the concepts studied in consumer economics.

Salesmanship was a course dealing with the principles of selling. The course covered current business practices and the development of the personal ability of the student.

An elective for seniors was business law. This course taught students the application of law in order to avoid legal difficulties in daily life.

Business law covers legal aspects related to everyday conflicts.

Language lab proves valuable to students' perception of speech.

Several new practices were put to use in the language department this year. Ideas stressed were conversation and comprehension through use of the language lab and culture. Each teacher was given one day every week for use of the lab where students would practice speaking skills. Cassettes in the library were used by students on a voluntary basis and movies were shown to students approximately once a month to help increase understanding. All the foreign language classes had seasonal learning by celebrating the holidays of the respective country, learning customs, and singing foreign Christmas carols. Performing skits written by the students increased their vocabulary and bettered their pronunciation in German, Spanish, Latin and French classes.

French classes in first year began an introduction to their chosen subject. Emphasis was put on comprehending and speaking, followed by reading and writing. Second and third year French students obtained more cultural material such as periodicals, French films, and recordings which were used to give the student a better concept of the language, people, and customs of France.

First year Latin classes began Latin with grammar and vocabulary plus the study of the culture, life, and heritage of Rome. Simplified and graded forms of "Livy" and portions from Caesar's commentaries on the Gallic War were read in second year Latin. Latin classes in third and fourth year studied vocabulary drills, word study, and figures of speech.

Beginning Spanish students were given the fundamentals in understanding and speaking. Second year Spanish students studied Spain and Latin American history and culture. Short stories, novels, and drama formed a basis for Spanish discussions in third and fourth year.

German I learned skills in grammar, reading, and German culture and history. Second year German students learned language structure and read for comprehension and development of writing skills. Third and fourth year German students had oral reports, dialogues, conversation, read short stories and novels, wrote themes, and took dictations.

Academic games aid students' insight into international strategy.

This year's social studies department developed a concept approach to learning which involved teaching by ideas instead of teaching chronologically. Sociology, American history, world history, and American government were the only subjects that were completely taught by using this method.

Many of the history classes played Inter-Nation Simulation and Propaganda. The American government classes played Democracy. These are educational "games" which helped improve student understanding of current world affairs.

Culture, religions, and the economic development of different civilizations were taught in the world history course, which brought about a better understanding of present day society. In world geography classes, students were given map work covering every area of the world. This study involved climate, agriculture, and resources. Studying current events beginning with World War II to present and American Foreign Policy were the main topics in the world affairs class.

Mr. Rice helps sociology students with personal finance notebooks.

Sociology is currently a one semester subject. Students in sociology learned about society and themselves. Some of the topics that were covered included social problems, social change, and the social self.

Class discussions and periodicals were used to compare the present to the past in American history classes. The American government classes learned the ideas of government, democracy, and citizen responsibilities. Students also learned about the governmental functions through an intense study of freedom, justice, and law.

A new elective entitled the world of work was offered at Jefferson this year. The four main topics studied were orientation of the future, health, school, and other people. The eighth grade history classes studied the United States by maps, exploring the expansion of the physical growth of the country from the colonial times to the present.

Rehearsing for the upcoming Thanksgiving assembly, members of the stage band play "Up, Up, and Away."

There were two concert bands, the Symphonic and the Varsity. Students with sufficient training and proficiency on their instruments could audition for either of these bands.

Any student who desired to study popular music and who wished to play in a "pit band," small combo, or a stage band with a "big band sound" could select stage band as his course.

The marching band practiced and played for pregame and half time performances during the football season. Any student reasonably proficient on a musical instrument used in a marching band, and being physically able to execute the required marching assignments, was eligible.

The purpose of the choir was to explore choral literatures of all kinds, both past and present, and to interpret and perfect the use of these numbers for use in school and community and any other occasion where vocal music was also a part of the program. The time allotted for singing and theory varied according to what the students' upcoming activities were and what the instructor felt they should know.

A sturdy kick sends the soccer ball across the field as the boys' gym class plays vigorously.

Physical education at Whitmer High School has developed over the years to provide students with experiences that are competitive, physically active, and perceived by the student as enjoyable and worthwhile. The purpose is to provide a program which reflects to each student the opportunity to test his capabilities and improve his inabilities so that he might be able to take full advantage of his society's increasing leisure time.

The experience, the joy of being involved, and the opportunity to know what it felt like to win, lose, and improve were the keys to the program's objectives which were based on personal physical fitness as well as team, individual, and extra-curricular sports activities.

The weather, the size of the classes, and the available facilities dictated the range, type, and intensity of activities the physical education department offered.

At the beginning of the school year, the AAHPER physical fitness test was administered to each student. The fall program centered around touch football for boys, and soccer and speedball for both boys and girls. The winter program involved basketball, volleyball, wrestling, badminton, tumbling, and gymnastics. The spring program included softball, archery, tennis, and golf. The AAHPER physical fitness test was administered at the conclusion of the school year.

The Circus, presented in March each year, represented one of the phys. ed. department's extra-curricular events. The Circus involved students, under faculty direction, who displayed various tumbling, gymnastics, and relay abilities all performed in three performance nights.

All students in the Washington Building took physical education and health. At the beginning of school, all ninth graders took a physical fitness test. During the winter months, the students had tumbling and worked with mini-trampoline, the balance beam, and the parallel bars. Volleyball games started in early spring and softball began in late spring.

The students at Jefferson took gym five days a week for one semester. Their activities throughout the year included tumbling stunts, volleyball, and in the spring softball for both girls and boys.

Health classes at Washington were coeducational this year. The students studied systems and functions of the body, sex education, mental health, first aid, drugs and drug abuse, cigarette smoking, and personal hygiene. The County and State Health Departments helped the students by providing film strips to further their knowledge of each topic.

ACTIVITIES

Performers achieve two record breaking weekend productions.

While sitting in the Von Trapp garden, Raul Asuncue and Debra Morey discuss love and wonder how it can survive.

Jan DeGood portrays the part of a wise Mother Abbess as she pauses to collect her thoughts.

Concerned about the postulate's behavior, the nuns sing "Maria."

As the Von Trapps bid their country farewell, they anticipate their escape to freedom.

Trying to gain the confidence of the family, Maria persuades them to sing DO-RE-MI with her.

Under the direction of Mr. Paul Slovak, many hours of practice and scenery building were put into "The Sound of Music." Unlike other years, the play was produced two complete weekends rather than one, and all the publicity was handled by Miss Sue Corrothers.

Marcia Mitruk starred as Maria, a young postulate, who was sent to be the governess of seven children. After explaining the children's strict discipline, Ervin Bratt, as Captain Von Trapp, left to visit his fiancée. Maria taught the children to sing and play, and they quickly learned to love her. Upon the captain's return, Maria realized she was in love with him, so she left for the abbey. Jan DeGood, as Mother Abbess, told Maria to face her problem. Maria found the captain had mutual feelings about her. They were married and soon after, the Nazi's invaded Austria. The captain was ordered to report to Berlin for duty. Love for country and family and pride in his military past overcame him. He and his family escaped over the beloved mountains to Switzerland.

At the concert hall, Marcia Mitruk and Irvin Bratt sing "Edelweiss" together for the last time before leaving Austria.

Police and gangsters accent the confusion during Hi-Jinx show.

The 19th annual Hi-Jinx show which was presented by the Washington student body, was written and directed by Miss Betty Houston. Assisting her in the vocal portion of the show were Mr. McMaken, Mr. Koester, and Mr. Arnold, who was in charge of the stage band. Mrs. Skulas, Miss Williamson, Mrs. Hocker and Miss Schwartz dedicated their spare time and talent to help make this year's production a big success.

Part of this year's cast consisted of an actress, a young playwright, an old actor, a temperamental director, an Irish policeman, two very unglamorous cleaning women, and a group of gangsters along with a few hopefuls trying to get into the theatre. The characters were brought to life by the fine performances of the actors.

The plot revolved around the playwright, who wanted his play to be produced just as he had written it. He also wanted to propose to the young actress but he had to do it in a way to avoid trouble with Louie the Rat and his henchmen Muggsie and Ciggy. The action during most of the show took place in a boarding house which was run by Lionel Barryless and his wife.

Caroline Sanborne protectingly warns her daughter Suzanne Beroset to guard her boyfriend, Dana King, against the evil ways of the town's flirt, Kay Richards, who is already trying to lure Dana.

While cleaning the theatre, Kim Strowger and Laura Gray pretend they are the stars of a big musical production on Broadway.

Craig Weide and Lee Richards comfort Celia Sharfe who is down-hearted because she failed to pass the playwright's auditions.

The playwright Dana King looks disapprovingly as Terry Jones dares to suggest making changes in the script.

Proficient gymnasts display versatility in tumbling exhibition.

Under much direction and training, Chris Peraino learns the application of muscle coordination in doing a parallel arm balance.

Jenny Fox and Cindy Crabb cautiously move into the next difficult routine.

The thirty-fourth annual Whitmer Circus, under the leadership of Mr. Joe Migliori, started out with coordinated calisthenics. Jon Perrott gave the verbal commands as the entire cast went through warm-up exercises. Each act followed as the participants displayed diversified talents and basic coordination.

In the acrobatic routine, eight girls performed a series of advanced stunts to music. The pyramids involved both girls and boys demonstrating individual, double, and triple stunts in balanced floor patterns. The students in tumbling developed mat work routines by combining basic skills into a unified sequence. Elementary co-ed was an intermediate step between individual and continuous acts.

Those who performed on the high bars, rings, trapeze, trampoline, balance beams, and parallel bars were students who had attained a high degree of skill. Free exercise was composed of a difficult rhythmic routine in which grace, flexibility, and endurance were characteristics possessed by all the girls. In vaulting, each student was striving for height, good form, and body control in his flight over the equipment.

Supervision combined with extensive practice and durability creates a flawless final act.

Hours of practice prove effective as Rob Warren, Jon Perrott, and Dave Huffman perfect this specialty act.

Rhythm plays an important part in the Swedish ball act.

Karen Ford, Diana Hain, and Sue Edgington use basic skills and talent to perform an outstanding three man stunt.

A unique addition to the circus program, three-man specials displayed the talents of two trios of highly skilled boys and girls performing advanced triples balancing stunts. Many hours were spent by these six people to perfect these highly specialized acts. Also new, the Swedish ball was a rhythmic routine encompassing a variety of unusual activities done with mod pink and blue balls. Advanced co-ed required strength and endurance to successfully complete the routine. Preliminary to the relays, a boy and girl representing each class competed to achieve the fastest ascent on the rope. Chosen representatives then competed in the relays.

The students appearing in the grand finale, the ladder act, were very carefully selected on the basis of skills achieved through intense participation in the Whitmer tumbling program. This act displayed very difficult stunts and balance by combining both floor and ladder pyramids. Each circus performer looks upon this act with a feeling of pride, and desires to become as accomplished as the participants and if possible, strives to be in the ladder act in future years.

Becky Kohler — 1969 Homecoming Queen

The senior float displays originality and ingenuity.

Brightly colored leaves, corn stalks, pumpkins, and witches complemented the 1969 Homecoming, "It Happens Every Fall." The week started off Monday with a bug race. By showing respect, students honored Mr. Martin on Tuesday. Wednesday was Pumpkin Day, the day each homeroom brought in pumpkins. The homeroom with the most and the one with the biggest won a prize. Thursday, the panthers cheered their way down Douglas Road to the stadium where they had a roaring pep session. The scene was set as Gina Mercurio was crowned junior attendant and Pam Wray sophomore attendant.

Friday, spirited Whitmerites displayed their school colors and whispered "beat Macomber" in the halls. Friday night the floats were displayed as each class showed its originality and long hours of work. Before huge cheering crowds the 1968 queen, Mary Scofield, passed on her title and crown to Becky Kohler, 1969 Homecoming queen. Saturday night the air was filled with rhythm as couples danced to the music of the Buccaneers. The field house lobby was staged as a haunted house with a witch and a cauldron in the center. Sunday finished the week as the senior girls carried a victory over the junior girls in the annual Powder Puff football game.

Rob humbly accepts the scholastic and athletic award.

Honored Dale Crow Award presented to senior Rob Warren.

The Dale Crow Award was started in 1946, and has ever since been a high honor for its recipient. It is a memorial to Dale Crow, a well liked Whitmer teacher, who during his teaching career was a big fan of all athletics. When World War II broke out, he chose to enter the armed services. Mr. Crow was on assignment in the South Pacific when he was killed during a flight.

Each year at the spring awards assembly the honor is given to an outstanding senior boy for his excellent scholastic and athletic performance. After the long awaited announcement is made, the winner stands proudly shaking hands with Mr. Erme.

The award's most recent recipient, Robert Warren, was very active in both football and wrestling during all his high school years. He provided the Panther team with much of its power and was considered by all, one of the star men. He was a second string all district football player. He took the honor of an all GLL wrestler and in final competition took third in the state. Rob was also an all GLL baseball player.

The bishop listens as the Scotland Yard detective questions the vicar as to where he was the preceeding evening.

In pursuit of a disguise, Dave Jerzy as an escaped Russian spy assaults the vicar in order to obtain the remainder of his clothes.

Performers' capers in senior play induce spontaneous laughter.

The cast members for the senior class play underwent much physical exertion to present three rollicking, hilarious performances of "See How They Run" by Phillip King. The action, which took place in a vicarage in England, included moments of romance, danger, intrigue, mystery, embarrassment, and especially comedy. A proper bishop of the church is attacked by "a madman in a state of 'undress,'" a not so kind village busy body encounters the horrors of "drink" for the first time, a Scotland Yard detective is confronted with the monumental task of deciding which of the five respectable British vicars is actually a notorious Russian spy, while the whimsical, cockney maid nonchalantly takes all the wild happenings in her stride, enjoying them along with the laughter of each of the audiences.

Mrs. Attie, along with student director Jeanne Wallace, dedicated many hours to directing the show, while Mr. Slovak and his second hour drama class designed and constructed the set. Lane Feaver and Jim Heintz, in the jobs of crew director and stage manager, kept things "running" just as smoothly backstage as the "running" on stage.

Jeff Nelson, down on his knees, is begging Lucia Urso to give his army uniform back so he can return to the base.

Raul Asuncue, the vicar, is astonished as his vivacious wife, Lucia Urso, expresses her wild desire to run through the square nude.

Kathy Pierce is disgusted with Debbie Bradish's inebriated state.

Rebellion of a small town youth provides theme for class play.

A small town in Connecticut was the setting for the junior class play, "Ah Wilderness." An average family of seven faced daily life and its typical problems. Their son, Richard, was a rebellious boy who liked to read the works of great English writers. Richard is passionately in love with Muriel, the neighbor girl, and hopes to marry her. Muriel's father forces her to break her ties with Richard.

Young arrogant Richard turns his hurt into violent rage and gets stoned in the presence of a stranger. Shattered with embarrassment, his parents were sure the world had come to an end. Muriel, however, manages to provide proof of her love for Richard by creating a moonlit rendezvous. Richard's parents are reminded of their happy youthful days. Once again the two are a happy pair.

Mrs. Attie spent many long hours directing, and Janet Timmerman interacted with the cast and director as student director. Both devoted a great deal of time to the play to help make it the huge success it was. Mr. Slovak and his third hour drama class built the scenery. Jo Thorley, Barb Trimble, and Robin Schaefer gathered props to make the appropriate setting.

While star gazing at the beach, Richard dramatically expresses his everlasting love for Muriel.

Furious with Richard's behavior, Nat Miller expounds his anger to the rest of the family.

Richard explains to Belle that he will remain faithful to Muriel.

Pep clubs enthusiastically create clever

With enthusiasm, spirit, and sportsmanship, the pep clubs helped to promote school spirit. In encouraging teams to a sure victory, members created colorful posters to hang up in the cafeteria and in the field house. Before athletic events, locker tags were made to encourage team members and to arouse Panther spirit.

Whitmer's varsity and reserve pep clubs, met once or twice a week after school hours to make posters and locker tags. Projects for this year included selling "Whitmer Panther" buttons and colorful ribbons depicting the defeat of the opposing team. Selling jewelry was another project planned for this year.

The Washington pep club members supported their team by attending home games and also making posters for the cafeteria. The members also sponsored a dance.

Members of athletic clubs participate in

Skill and coordination are demonstrated by the members of GAA as they practice for an intramural event in basketball.

GAA encouraged the girls of Whitmer to participate in intramurals, to learn teamwork, to make friends, and to learn to have good sportsmanship. The girls also kept their bodies in good condition by doing exercises. Their activities involved initiating new members and sponsoring interscholastic competition with other schools in field hockey, volleyball, basketball, and softball. In an individual sport, the girls bowled at Douglas Lanes on Monday nights, trying to better bowling averages and gain additional experience.

To learn how to ride, jump, and show your horse was what the Equestrians aimed for. The members also gained knowledge in the care and training of horses. The members included students from all three buildings and they rode every Tuesday evening at Howard Stables. During the spring the Equestrians enjoyed putting on a horse show to exhibit their skill.

Athletes, which have received a letter for the sport in which they participated in, are eligible to be one of the members of Varsity W. They often sat together at pep sessions and helped promote school spirit. A few highlights of the Varsity W was having the annual basketball game between the members and a faculty team, a dance, and a banquet. They also enjoyed having an Easter egg hunt for the Children's home.

Youth for Christ Club presented a balanced type of living to teens by creating an awareness to the physical, mental, and social areas of life as they relate to the spiritual. They had two meetings each month with speakers and films, plus activities such as rallies with other area high schools which were sponsored by area clubs. Any student interested in joining qualified for membership.

Helping students to decide wisely about a medical career is the purpose of Paramedical. Anyone interested in one of the many fields of medicine may join. Among their service projects this year, they gave a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family, gave cotton ball Christmas trees to patients in the Spencer Manor rest home during the Christmas season, and held a spring banquet which is an annual event. Other activities were selling caramel apples at the football games, attending monthly meetings at the academy of medicine, and taking a spring tour of the University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The purpose of Y-Teens is to unite its members in the spirit of friendliness and service. During the year the members helped with the mailing of Christmas seals and they made a Christmas basket for a needy family. They brought happiness into the hearts of the elderly people while Christmas caroling at a nursing home. Besides these several projects they had many fun projects.

to eventful year for DECA and VICA.

Any student enrolled in distributive education is eligible to be a member of the Whitmer Chapter of the Distributive Education Club of America. Highlights of the year included the district, state, and national competitive activities and the Bowling Green Regional Leadership Conference. Members of DECA operated the school store which kept students supplied. DECA also sponsored a Christmas family. The most well known event of the year was National DECA Month. During the month many of the most used items in the school store were put on sale for costs well below the normal price.

Juniors and seniors enrolled in a bonafide vocational program are eligible for membership in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. The club's most successful project was to boost the image of vocational education. They sponsored tours through the vocational wing to acquaint fellow students with what goes on in vocational study. The tours proved to be very interesting and quite helpful. Some members were sent as representatives to the state, local, and national conventions. One of our senior representatives, Louise Winfrey, was chosen as Miss Ohio VICA. She helped improve the Whitmer chapter by observing many clubs throughout Ohio.

Dennis Didion makes a purchase from two DECA members, Donna Mitchell and Linda Lanzi, who operate the school store.

All of the members of Intensive Office Education belonged to one of the business blocks. Members held a roast and a swim party during their leisure hours. They also took field trips to some of the city's banks, the telephone company, and the court house to better acquaint themselves with how real offices are run. The club's major money-making project was selling various household items to students for Christmas presents. This project helped members to prepare for the selling world and the handling of money. Their money was used for buying office machines for the business department, and buying a copying machine for the office.

The only requirement to be a member of Future Teachers of America is to have the desire to become a teacher. Members spent several afternoons at the elementary schools where they observed teaching methods and disciplinary measures. They were also given a chance to try out their skills as teachers' aids in the complex. Some members went along as chaperones with a few special classes to Greenfield Village. This event helped prove their capabilities. They held a slumber party and a Christmas party for the members.

The chess clubs offered members a keener knowledge about the game. The Whitmer and Washington clubs not only provided a time for relaxation, but also encouraged competition. Anyone who is interested in chess, is eligible to join the Washington team, whose objective was to gain skill in playing chess.

Whitmer's chess team attended and won many tournaments, among which were the 1967 Detroit Motor City Championship, the Robert W. Beach Memorial, and the 1967-68 Greater Toledo Area Chess League Championship. During the weekly practices, the students competed with each other for their board positions.

The Junior Engineering Technical Society is dedicated to stimulating students' interests in engineering and physical sciences. Among their projects for the year were construction of a telescope and a rocket, and the study of astronomy, communications and photography. During the year, the members spent nights looking at the different planets and constellations. They also took a trip to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry.

Keeping open communication channels

To create a greater sense of responsibility and cooperation with the student body was one of Whitmer's student councils' goals for this year. Executive student council members were elected by the class and the homeroom presidents and vice-presidents were elected by the homerooms. Whitmer student council candy sale, homecoming, turnabout and the holiday dance were very successful. Welcoming the sophomores on orientation day and sponsoring assemblies and service drives were other tasks for the student council.

Besides assisting in open house and orientation day for new students, the Washington student council also sponsored a Christmas dance and an orphan.

Early in the fall, Jefferson's student council lead the complex of the three respective buildings, in the candy sale. They also sponsored a Christmas dance to start the students' holiday vacation. Two of the aims of the student council were the promoting of school spirit and the bettering of student understanding about the school's functions.

The Whitmer Marching Band stands in concert formation in readiness to perform at post-game.

Enthusiasm and strenuous practice help

Entertaining at the second annual chicken barbeque, traveling to Massillon to march against the famed "Tiger Swing Band," and marching in the Christmas parade were some of the highlights of the football season for the 1969-70 Whitmer Panther Marching Band.

Spending the last two weeks of summer vacation and hours after school in practice, the band members perfected shows that they presented at pre-game, half-time, and post-game throughout the season.

The first game with St. Francis opened with a pre-game performance by the marching band, and at half-time the Washington and Jefferson Junior High bands joined in to present a half-time show on "Communications", before a record breaking crowd of 8,300.

All games were concluded when the band marched on the field in block formation and played a few selected numbers while the stadium was being cleared. Keeping with tradition, the band played "Auld Lang Syne" at the last post-game of the season.

This was the first time junior Jim McVicker, who studied under the direction of last year's drum major, appeared as drum major leading the band across the field.

Jim McVicker, the 1969 drum major, stands at attention as the band plays the "Star Spangled Banner" and the flag waves at full mast.

musical moods at annual spring program.

Members of the Varsity Band began their busy schedule by presenting a concert open to the public. In February, many hours of practice by the musicians prevailed as the bandsmen entered the State Solo and Ensemble contest. Ending the year, many of the Varsity bandsmen participated in the Pit Band, formed for Whitmer's annual musical.

Many students have been learning to play string instruments, thus, the Washington-Jefferson String and Stage Ensemble was formed. This group appeared with the band to give concerts.

Music students interested in jazz formed the three stage bands in the Whitmer Complex. The bands presented programs separately and combined with the concert bands during the season. The groups also toured the elementary schools, playing songs especially for elementary students and entertained at P.T.A. meetings throughout the year.

Musicians contribute time and practice,

The Whitmer Symphonic Band had several concerts throughout the year including a Christmas program with the Whitmer Choir in December and a caberet style concert, complete with a French atmosphere of round tables and checkered tablecloths, in the spring. In February, many members busily practiced solos and group ensembles for the State Solo and Ensemble Contest held at Bowling Green. In March, the Symphonic Band competed with other area high school bands in the district contest held at the University of Toledo. The year ended by performing, along with the other bands, at the annual ice cream social.

The Washington Concert Band opened the Christmas season by presenting a public performance in the Washington gymnasium. Months of hard practice during the winter provided the sound and technique needed to enter the Ohio Music Education Association Junior High Band Contest in the spring. Also, many of the bandmen entered Solo and Ensemble contests and received many excellent and superior ratings. Besides concerts, the band participated at many of the assemblies and school functions throughout the year.

The Jefferson Concert Band, along with the Jefferson Choir, provided an entertaining program at Christmas for the student body at Jefferson. In the fall, the concert band traveled to the elementary buildings in the school system and provided an entertaining program for the students. During the late spring, the band presented an excellent program open to the public.

Members of the choir unite their voices

Choir members sing Christmas carols in the front lobby.

Under the new direction of Mr. Dennis McMaken, the Whitmer Choir practiced hard for a busy year. Besides doing their traditional Christmas and spring concerts, they also had a Folk Concert in October and a Pop Festival in May. This was the second year the choir was invited to sing at Lamson's Department Store. The group took a bus downtown and sang the selections they were to sing at their Christmas Concert. For something different this year they sang at old folks' homes, retarded children's homes, elementary schools, and went Christmas caroling. Many members of the choir went to Solo and Ensemble competition in the spring and brought back many excellent and superior ratings. The choir prepared selections to sing at the Baccalaureate and Commencement ceremonies.

Both the Washington Mixed Choir and the Girls' Glee Club practiced very hard to put on several concerts and combined their talents with the Whitmer Choir to put on a Folk Concert in October. On December 21, these choirs, along with the Washington Band, presented the traditional Christmas show. Other projects of the choirs were to sing at an Old Folks' Home, orphanages, and retarded children's homes. In May, members of the choirs went to district competition. From the areas of solo and ensemble singing, the Washington students brought home many top ratings.

Choirs and Spanish clubs spur varied

Initiations at Ottawa Park and formal inductions at a banquet were two of the major projects for the Whitmer Spanish Club during the month of November. The year was ended by the annual picnic held at one of the local parks.

At Jefferson, the projects of the year included a visit to the Toledo Zoo for Christmas around the world, making a pinata, a trip to the Toledo Art Museum to view the Spanish Art exhibitions, and a dinner which included courses of Mexican food.

The Jefferson Mixed Choir and the Girls' Glee sang at several of the school assemblies. They also performed selections at the elementary schools to give them practice in singing before an audience.

Foreign romance and culture stimulates

Leaving for Montreal and Toronto are Mr. Kreinbrink and French club members, Debbie Bombrys and Debbie Bailey.

To further their interest in the French culture, literature, geography, and history, students joined the Whitmer French Club. During the year they had several work projects as well as fun projects. The work projects included holding car washes and bake sales. They bought can goods and other food items for a Thanksgiving basket that they gave to a needy family. They helped make teen-age orphans happy by holding a dance in their honor. During the Christmas season the members sang Christmas Carols and donated canned goods to the Canned Goods Drive sponsored by Student Council. They ended an exciting year with a trip to Montreal and Toronoto, Canada, in the spring, where they observed French people and their customs.

The Washington and Jefferson French Club members presented skits and sang songs during their meeting in order to stimulate the students interested in wanting to learn more about the French customs. During the Christmas season, the members learned to sing Christmas Carols in French. The Freshman French Club went Christmas Caroling at a nursing home.

Spanish Honorary is composed of students who have done excellent work in Spanish. The important event of the year was the induction of new members. This included presentation of dialogues and talks on students' experiences in Spanish speaking countries. Other events were the sponsoring of National Spanish exams for the best students and giving an award medal to the outstanding fourth year Spanish student.

French Honorary members have achieved a high average in the French language. Their year began with fall inductions for juniors and seniors who had fulfilled the requirements. Members enjoyed a big feast at their annual banquet. The club ended its year with spring inductions for sophomores.

Quill and Scroll is an honorary club for high school journalists, on either the yearbook or paper staff. The club sponsored a campaign for the students of Whitmer to compose a poem, composition, or an art project. These works were then sent to T.U. to be judged. Before athletic games, the club sold maize and blue shakers which was very successful. Members also planned an interesting trip through the Blade building, which helped to advise them in their writing skills.

Classical Honor Society members have done outstanding work in Latin. Club members had a Saturnalia or Christmas party. They also held a slave sale between members that was very exciting. The Roman Banquet was also held where the members dressed in the old Roman style and ate the foods of Julius Caesar.

Clubs provide experience and knowledge

Any student wishing to learn more about photography in order to enjoy the hobby was eligible to join the photography Club. In their meetings they were taught the techniques of taking a good picture, and how to develop pictures was also a project of the club.

Any student having one year of German and wishing to further his interest in cultural fields, was found in the German Club. For the year's activities the German Club held a pot luck supper, planned a field trip to German restaurants, sold German beer pretzels, and at the end of the year had a picnic. An interclub ice skating party was also planned.

For something new this year the freshman drama club scheduled programs at several elementary schools in the area. The theme of their traditional Thanksgiving assembly was "This Land is Our Land," and at Christmas they gave the play "A Night to Remember." A three-act play was given in the spring.

The Whitmer Summer Players had a worthwhile second season last summer with three productions. One was a two-act play, Blithe Spirit. The second was an evening of one-act plays. For a challenge, in the third production they did a shortened version of Hamlet, which turned out to be very successful. Also a member of the Summer Players, Bill Wians, wrote a series of pantomimes set to music which the members enacted.

In the fall Thespians had a speaker who explained his approach to the new experimental theater. He had all the members participate in the exercises he uses in his approach. At Christmas, members entertained the children of St. Anthony's Villa with a play and refreshments. At the spring honor assembly, Thespians excitedly awaited the news of which senior would be chosen "Best Thespian" of the year.

Participation in interscholastic speech events means eligibility for the Forum. Each year the main project of Forum is to raise money to sponsor these speech tournaments. A carwash was their means of raising the money this year. Many parties were given to celebrate the tournaments that Whitmer students had won.

Debaters and extempores compete each

The Whitmer varsity debate team did very well at several of the nation's big tournaments. The team of Paul Turner and Greg Rosenbaum took first place at the Houston, Texas, tourney in which 2,000 students from 87 schools participated. The varsity debate team of Bruce Weide, Jim Godbey, Greg Rosenbaum, and Paul Turner placed first and second at the Michigan State University tournament. In December, Paula Scanlon took first place in Original Oratory at the DeVilbiss tourney.

To support the many debate and Individual Events tournaments, the booster club of the National Forensic League sponsored a school year calendar. Members of NFL sold patron ads to students, and advertising to business firms. Voting took place to select a queen whose picture appeared on the calendar.

Students from both Washington and Jefferson combined their speaking talent with long hours of practice to attain the fine record they had at the weekly speech tournaments. The tournaments that these students attended were held at Toledo area high schools. Most of these students were novices this year and plan to continue in the Whitmer speech program.

and gains valuable librarian experience.

Besides helping the librarian provide better library service to the school, the three Library Councils in the respective buildings also tried to promote greater interest among students in the use of the library and in reading. Anyone who was interested in library work and maintained at least a "C" or above average grade was eligible to be a member. The students assisted in the operation of the library during their student scheduled time by shelving and stamping books, filing cards, working at the circulation desk and doing clerical work in the library. The Whitmer Library Council visited a library of a different type than Whitmer's by touring the Chinese Russian Center Library at DeVilbiss. They were also in charge of putting pertinent displays in the one showcase opposite the library.

As one of their projects for this year, the Washington Council visited a bindery. They also sponsored a second-hand book sale at Christmas time to raise money for CARE.

Honorary recognizes qualities of service,

During one of the Junior Council on World Affairs meetings, they discussed and had a speaker on the pros and cons of the Vote 19. Inviting Mr. Martin and other speakers to their meetings, they received a better understanding of the world today.

The National Honor Society rendered service to the school and to others who needed help. Members are those students who demonstrated the qualities of leadership, scholarship, service, and character. Service projects included helping to guide at open house, making Thanksgiving baskets, and tutoring students.

Selling stock, Christmas cards, and Whitmer mugs are just a few ways that the American Field Service raised money. Besides bringing Francisco Rodriguez from Tome, Chile, to Whitmer, they also sent a Whitmer student abroad. For the summer bus stop, Whitmer students hosted forty foreign students.

Campaigning in September for subscriptions was one of the Panther's Pause members' most important jobs. Staff members stayed after school gathering information, writing and editing copy, and pasting stories to meet biweekly deadlines. Seventeen issues of the paper were published by the staff. Some of the issues were expanded to six pages and included several new columns such as Gripe Type, Ends and Odds, Panther's Prowl, and Staff Static. In addition to regular issues, December found the staffers working diligently to put out the annual Christmas Greeting Supplement for students. In the late spring, they worked many hours publishing the Last Will and Testament of the Seniors.

Whitmer's staff exchanged issues with many area schools including Sylvania, Ottawa Hills, Woodward, DeVilbiss, Central, and Lakewood to compare styles and techniques used in high school publishing. Several staff members attended a newspaper workshop at Bowling Green State University in the fall to obtain fresh ideas and new concepts to use in improving the Whitmer publication.

Journalism I and a B average in English are prerequisites for staff members, so the newspaper will acquire students who have a good, sound understanding of journalism.

Plans for the 1970 Oracle began last spring with the selection of a staff and theme, and a trip to the American Yearbook Company in Hannibal, Missouri. Staffers met during the summer to orient new members, organize ideas, and plan their respective sections. Staff members began the hectic school year by taking underclass, club, and curriculum pictures, selling advertising, and deciding the order to put the sections in the book. After receiving pictures from the studios, students spent scheduled time, lunch hours, and time during assemblies, pep sessions and after school for planning layouts, interviewing teachers for copy information, identifying people, cropping pictures, writing heads, drawing 3-R's and proofreading.

After all deadlines were completed and sent to the company, attention was focused on plans for distribution and next year's book. New supplies were ordered and files up-dated. Prospective staff members were interviewed and selected, and returning students were appointed to positions. In May, books were received from the company and distributed to the students and faculty.

ATHLETICS

Quarterback, Randy Curson, is given last minute instructions on a crucial play by head coach Norman Decker.

Varsity shows style and courage in first independent standing.

After months of training, the Whitmer grid team entered the 1969 season. The team did well, with an overall record of 7-3, in their first exposure in independent standings. This year's team found only seven of the twenty-two starting players to be seniors, accounting for some degree of inexperience.

In the year's opener, the varsity defeated the Knights of St. Francis, 6-0, a feat no previous Whitmer team managed. The year's most surprising upset was the fall of Whitmer to Newark. Following this defeat was a loss to the Tigers of Massilon. Retaining the little brown jug, the squad outscored the Clay Eagles 20-7. Dayton Fairview and Lorain Southview followed as victories. On homecoming night Macomber tossed the Panthers a 14-0 loss. Recovering quickly, the team went on to defeat Bedford the next week, 33-14. Ending the season, both Sylvania and Central felt the Panther's bite. Central fell 30-28, putting down the challenge made by Irish coach Jim Cordiak.

Earning places on the Toledo Metropolitan All-Star Football Team were seniors John Jacquot on First Team Defense and Larry Fritz on Second Team Defense. Steve Barber was placed on the All Northwest Ohio Second Team Offense and Larry Fritz received honorable mention, defense.

Defensive linebacker Mike Oikle charges the Bedford runner.

Whitmer swim team breaks all previously established records.

The 1970 Whitmer swim team with the leadership of team captains Mike Dearth, Doug Hale, and Dan Hetzner, was very strong. The team started only four years ago and are now winning against teams that have been in existence for ten years or more. They were up against some of the toughest competition, including the state champs, St. Francis.

The Panthers have broken almost all records this year including the 400 meter free style, the 200 meter individual medley, the 200 meter medley relay, the 400 meter free style relay, the 100 meter butterfly, the 100 meter free style, the 100 meter backstroke, and the 50 yard free style.

The workouts were the hardest since the team started. Under the leadership of Coach George Cicak, the swimmers were disciplined by having to be at practice four times during the school week, Saturdays, and sometimes Sundays. The practices varied between sprinting, swimming long distances, and kicking 25 to 50 yards. The practices usually lasted from one to two hours of constant swimming.

Mike Dearth competes with his fellow swimmers in a half mile relay.

Cross-country this year had an outstanding record of 6 wins and 4 losses. Whitmer won their first two meets, one against Port Clinton 48 to 19, and the other against Bedford 30 to 25. One of the toughest meets was against Clay with a final score of 29 to 29. Unfortunately teams cannot tie so it was counted as a loss. The longest winning streak was three in a row, a smashing victory over Clay, 38 to 33, then winning against Elmwood 35 to 21, and finally over-taking Bowling Green 58 to 33.

Workouts were long distance running and short sprints. Senior letter winners were Robert Davenport, Mark Charpie, Ted Erni, and Phil Frawley. There were also several underclassmen who did an outstanding job and lettered. Since many will return, it seems that cross country will be successful next year.

John Kantner attempts to drive the baseline for a Panther bucket.

The 1969-70 Panther basketball squad made Joe Migliori's first varsity coaching job at Whitmer a great success. The young coach led his team to a 10-9 season. Developing his team into a maturing, competitive squad, the new coach scheduled tough teams throughout the state.

The Panthers dropped their first game at the hands of the Woodward Polar Bears. Coach Migliori got his team back on their feet to first take a 74-70 victory over DeVilbiss, and to then roll over both Tiffin and Bedford. Start interrupted the winning string by defeating the Whitmer squad 63-61, but the Panthers again picked themselves up and defeated Lorain and Bowsher, who were newly added to the schedule this year. Rogers' experienced team paid off as they took an 86-60 victory from the Panthers. After losses to Pt. Clinton and St. Francis, the Panthers got on the winning tune again and took games from Clay and Cardinal Stritch. However, the winning streak soon ended as they were upset by an improved Bedford team. Finishing the season with a good look for next year, the Whitmer varsity won one of their remaining three games.

This year's team was led by two returning letter winners, senior Greg Mugg and junior John Kantner. Greg carried an 18 point average per game and John maintained a 20 point average. Another outstanding player was junior, Doug Good. Coach Migliori's coaching staff consisted of Mr. Martin, assistant varsity, and Mr. Rice, who put together a fine reserve team consisting of all sophomores. In a spectacular game with DeVilbiss, the reserves came from 12 points down to overcome the Tigers in three overtimes. The reserves turned out a 500 season.

Mike Sares attempts to score for the Whitmer reserves.

The freshman basketball teams coached by Mr. Flick, who teaches at Trilby, and Mr. Horstman, from Jefferson, faced a rugged schedule this year because of being eliminated from the GLL. The eighth grade coaches, Mr. Bartoo and Mr. Cunningham, put together two fine teams, both averaging over the 500 mark. The eighth grade players gained valuable experience by playing teams out of the GLL, and by sometimes playing teams who were freshmen.

The Pantherettes, in red and blue outfits, added something new and exciting to halftime during the basketball season. Comprised of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, the Pantherettes practiced many hours after school to perfect drill routines for the audiences. Under the direction of Miss Tussing and Mrs. Pletcher, the Pantherettes had a successful first year.

Underclassmen learn the basic knowledge of wrestling strategy.

Demonstrating a double arm bar, Bill Henry keeps his man to the mat making it difficult for his opponent to score a reversal.

The Whitmer grapplers under the coaching of Mr. Smith, who teaches physical education at Washington and was a former Sylvania coach, wrestled topnotch teams around the state, including St. Francis and the 2nd rated Michigan team, Bedford. Most of the grapplers were experienced because they wrestled last year. Mr. Smith was assisted by Mr. Lattimore who coached the reserve team, helping to build future varsity.

In their first match the Panthers defeated the Clay squad. Then the grapplers met a tough Trenton team who is ranked high in the Michigan polls, and were defeated 19-32. The Findlay Trojans were no match for the Panthers who won 38-8. Whitmer again hosted the Whitmer invitational which saw a disappointing 12th place, only posting one champion, John Jacquot. In a tri-meet with Sylvania and Macomber, the Panthers placed behind Sylvania but defeated the Macmen. At Northwood the Panthers met a fine team but came out victorious 27-21. At the Start Invitational, Whitmer placed second with Mark Brown, Chuck Freels, and Gary Wright all winning first place trophies. Bedford defeated the Panthers who lost eight weight classes, Marc Brown being the only one undefeated.

The freshmen practiced with the Whitmer teams in order to prepare them for their future years as varsity material. Coached by Mr. Cain and Mr. Klomp, the freshmen wrestled many top teams.

The eighth grade coach, Mr. Reifert, turned out fine wrestlers in preparing them for future years at Whitmer. Not so much the winning as the learning of the fundamentals of wrestling was the goal of both the eighth and ninth grade squads.

Each year more than one hundred Whitmer students try out for positions on the cheerleading squads. The process is long and strenuous but produces top rate squads. Cheerleaders are chosen for their gymnastic abilities and their belief in the purposes set forth in the Whitmer Cheerleader Constitution; to promote spirit, fair play, and cooperation in all aspects of student life.

This year Whitmer's squads have undergone certain progressive changes. The most outstanding change was the addition of a permanent boys squad to the varsity section. The girls have worked out many new cheers and were declared one of the top four squads in the Northwestern Ohio Cheerleader Clinic.

The reserve squad was very active this year also. Having gone through the same elimination process as the varsity, these girls also are very qualified. They are basically auxiliaries and assistants to the varsity squad, and are often heavily counted on by the varsity.

Each of the other two buildings on the Whitmer campus has two cheerleading squads. Building spirit is not an easy chore but these novices do an excellent job on the eighth and ninth grade levels.

Panther cheerleader Mary Jo Jones' enthusiasm is unmistakable.

Energetic reserve cheerleader, Sharon Hughes, lends her voice to support the varsity squad at the Massilon game.

Cheerleaders hold the pride shield which the starters run through as they come on the field.

RESERVES: L. Foley, S. Hughes, P. Kidd, P. McCartney.

GOLF TEAM: Mr. Gannon — Coach, D. Lindhorst, D. Patterson, M. Snug, G. Crawfis, J. Crawfis, D. Perkins, J. Wagenknecht, T. Barnes, J. Kantner, J. Zakrzewski, C. Turner, G. Padley.

Strong opposition in '69 overcomes young but impressive squad.

The 1969 Whitmer golf team, under the coaching of Mr. Gannon, lost to Sylvania in the opening match of the season. In the next match they overcame Port Clinton, followed by a loss to Ottawa Hills. Maumee was next to go down to defeat but after that the Panthers only saw one victory in their next eight matches. The Panthers ended the season taking fourth place in the G.L.L.

Dave Patterson and Dale Lindhorst were Whitmer's number one and two men respectively. Dave Patterson, often medalist for the Panthers, took fourth in the G.L.L. with a fine round of 77. This put him in a position to go to Findlay for the districts where he was unfortunately eliminated in the first round.

Coach Gannon, the new coach for the 1969 season, stated that young talent would offer strong competition to Whitmer opponents in future years.

John Crawfis putts the ball as his brother George tends the pin on the eighth hole at Sunningdale Golf Course.

Right: Dave Patterson, Whitmer's number one man, drives the ball far up the fairway.

During a strenuous game, Whitmer's Larry Silverman exerts a great effort in an attempt to return his opponent's serve.

Neil Doermann delivers a burning serve over the net in a match against Start.

Tennis is a sport which requires a great deal of its players; strength, dexterity, quick reflexes, and most of all stamina. Last year the Whitmer tennis team displayed these attributes in ample portions. The fighting Panthers, under the able guidance of their coach, James Whiteman, finished the season with a record of four wins and five losses. The scores for the matches were close, often within one point. However, despite the fierce opposition, the team managed to climb to a strong second place in the GLL standings, successfully defending the position which they held in the preceding season.

The racquetmen missed the efforts of Jim Weinberg, last year's most promising newcomer, who was studying in Brazil during the season. Making up for Weinberg's absence however, were graduating seniors Mike Negrin and Steve Sanders, who were the team's strongest and most polished players.

However, with the return of a great number of experienced players this season, including Jim Weinberg, Coach Whiteman voices hope that this year's season will be an even better one than last year for the Panthers.

In an early season match, senior Steve Smith's expression shows the great concentration necessary to defeat his opponent.

Inexperience hinders striving cindermen in Great Lakes League.

Whitmer's track team, led by Mr. Cline, started the season in a tri-meet where they defeated Bowling Green. Even though the cindermen were capable of a win, Sandusky overcame them. In the next three matches the Panthers were victorious only once, but won 5 of the last 7 meets. At the close of the season, the cindermen were fourth in the G.L.L. Starting their first year in the Gold W meet, the Panthers ranked second.

Although the team as a whole suffered a rough season, sophomore Jim DeRose was able to break the old two mile record. Also outstanding, junior Mike Lotte placed first in the district pole vaulting event.

Jim DeRose breaks the school two mile record at Blade Relays.

Bill Frey anticipates a good start in the Gold W meet.

Panther track stars streak forward to a sensational start.

Diamondmen finish a frustrating season with record of 9-9.

Under the leadership of Coach Alt, the 1969 varsity baseball team ended the season with a 9-9 record. The team was beaten by Waite in the first game 7 to 5, then went on to take Blissfield in a double header 6 to 5 and 5 to 4. The Panthers won against Bowling Green 4 to 0 in which Greg Grimes pitched the only no hitter of the season. In their first three game winning streak, the team defeated Maumee 7 to 6, Macomber 3 to 1, and St. Johns 12 to 3. On a second occasion, they stomped DeVilbiss 7 to 4, Sylvania 8 to 3, and Bowling Green 7 to 6.

Jeff Welch was voted the most valuable player, and Dave Bomar was voted the most inspirational player. The batting title went to Bob Russell, Greg Grimes had the most RBI's, Bob Leist had the most stolen bases, and Bob Warren had the most home runs.

The reserves were GLL Champs with a perfect record of 8-0.

Jeff Welch, most valuable player, displays his pitching ability.

Fiberglas cord is making tracks.

These tough glass fibers from Owens-Corning add safety and performance to tires on most 1970 Detroit cars. They form the fabric that protects Apollo space suits from temperature and fire.

And Fiberglas' reinforcements put strength and durability into a majority of pleasure-boat hulls built today. In fact, it's estimated there are more than 33,000 ways Fiberglas materials can profitably replace metals, wood or cloth. They're already in many of these uses right now, moving fast into others.

Your career could make tracks at Owens-Corning too. There are hundreds of opportunities. For information, write us: Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation, Fiberglas Tower, Toledo, Ohio 43601

Mrs. Irma Schlegel

In Dedication

After graduating in 1929 from the University of Toledo with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education, Mrs. Irma Schlegel came to the Washington Local School System and began her teaching career at Whitmer High School. From 1929 until 1931 she taught both physical education and social studies. In 1932, she started teaching only in the social studies area and did so for 23 years. In 1954, besides teaching social studies, she occupied the office of part time Dean of Girls. After a sudden resignation by the principal in the spring of 1954, Mrs. Schlegel became acting principal of Whitmer until the end of the school year. The 1955—1956 school year was a very important year as it was the anniversary of her twenty-fifth year as a member of the Whitmer faculty, and it was also the year she became full time Dean of Girls, the job she presently holds.

At the close of the 1969—1970 school year, Mrs. Schlegel will retire as Dean of Girls from Whitmer High School. In recognition of her many successful years of service and loyalty to Whitmer, we the 1970 ORACLE staff would like to dedicate this fortieth edition of the ORACLE to Mrs. Irma Schlegel.

The account of this year is complete. Through this publication we have attempted to present the changes and expansion that have occurred in the Whitmer complex. Special thanks go to Mrs. Margaret Towe, Miss Catherine Noble, Mr. Bob Abraham of H.A. Powell Studios, Mr. Bob Blanton of the American Yearbook Company, and the students, faculty, and administration of Whitmer. Particular thanks go to Mrs. Carol Norton who devoted many hours helping the staff with the preparation of the book.
